THE PRODUCTION

High School Brawl is an ultra-gritty action feature film for the Cinecoup Film Accelerator created by Rambunxious Entertainment. After going the distance through twelve rounds in the Cinecoup ring, High School Brawl has received overwhelming support from fans and critics alike, and Rambunxious Entertainment is extremely excited about the movie that has emerged into the Cinecoup Final 5!

THE STORY

In a state-of-the-art juvenile correctional facility, one audacious student aims to teach the system a lesson in revenge.

High School Brawl follows Chester Worthe, an eleventh grade student at the Noble Academy. Chester is just trying to survive until graduation, but when he gets set up by a rival inmate for a crime he didn't commit, Chester vows revenge and assembles a crew of outcasts to help him bring the entire school to its knees before the gangs, guards, and teachers eat him alive!

FRANCHISE POTENTIAL

This movie is just one of the many action-packed stories that can be told in the High School Brawl universe. From the boys in West Block, to the girls in East Block, there's a whole world that can be expanded through TV spinoffs, graphic novels, animation, video games, and more.

THE FILMMAKERS

High School Brawl comes from the minds of three Edmontonian filmmakers, Aaron Kurmey, Kevin Johnson, and Ryan Hatt, collectively known as Rambunxious Entertainment. Together they've produced three feature films since their company's inception in 2009, Hoodoo Voodoo (2011), Battle Earth (2013 - released worldwide through Multivisionnaire Pictures), and Thousand Yard Stare (currently in post-production). They have nearly a decade of filmmaking experience, and are more than ready to bring High School Brawl to the big screen!
